“Sacraments and Ordinances” Seminar

Curious about what baptism and communion have meant to people over almost 2,000 years? Looking for some fresh ways to think about these practices and to create rituals that resonate for our day? Need to write papers or engage with your board or committee for ordination about communion or baptism?

“Sacraments and Ordinances” (WO625) meets June 24–28 at Methodist Theological School in Ohio (3081 Columbus Pike, Delaware, Ohio) and is open to students, alums, and auditors. Readings come from the early church up into postcolonial theory and current issues (including justice, gender, ecology). Course is discussion-based with some online components.

Contact Robin Knowles Wallace rwallace@mtso.edu with any questions.
